

To whom it may concern,

Amy McCafferty was our real estate agent 3 ½ years ago when we moved to Los Gatos. Amy was an integral part of educating us on the Bay Area and the information, alternatives and tradeoffs to make our choice of community and house.

The benefit of Amy was that she was always neutral, and candid about facts while providing her opinion as well as context in terms of how she saw us fitting into the communities. The other aspect Kim and I appreciated was her low pressure, professional, yet easy going style. As a family that has moved a lot and knows what we want, she didn't try and push communities or properties but rather was there as a guide. Amy also took feedback quickly and avoided wasting our time, and was always available.

After closing, Amy went the extra step and really helped us acclimate to the area. She helped introduce us to people, restaurants, shopping, and schools with was extremely helpful.

We highly recommend using Amy as a relocation/real estate agent.
